New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, November 4 .- To-day's stock market was a two-sided affair, In that some stocks were strong and some were weak. The great bulk of the securities, however, was inert, and the price movement was listless and insignificant. A recurrence of strength in United States Steel and a congestion of practically the whole activity of the later market in that security did not have a favorable effect on the tone of the speculation. The enormous dealings in that stock were largely responsible for the swelling of the day's transactions to above the average of 25, transactions to above the average of 26, and in the second of the market were inclined to be heavy. The volume of new stocks and bonds projected within a short time past; the knowledge that similar large requirements lie before foreign markets, and the active and growing demand for money for commercial use combine to inculcate caution in the use of the credits for speculative employment. The volent speculative employment. The volent speculative employment. The volent speculative and grantled case which is accepted as an object lesson in conservative financial quarters.

close was weak at a net decline of 256 points, generally 4965, joints lower on current crop deliveries.

The opening was easy at a decline of 1156 points, and shortly after the opening active months were 21825 points not lower in response to lower Liverpool capies and solling for a reaction by local professionals. Covering by foreign straddiers furnised at the inarket some support curing the morning and slight railies occurred, but later the volume of liquidation became enormous, with outside longs frightened by the continued absence of built support and rumors that the leading operators had sold out. Stop orders were saught on the decline, and the market during the rest of the day was sensationally weak. January contracts sold off to 14.5 and May to 14.5, or 51835 points net lower and from 1465 points below the high records of the previous day. Lest prices were at the lowest. The fact that reading buils did not come to the support of the market on the break was taken by many as confirming rumors regarding the past two or three days, and while three was no particular change in the news sentiment was evidently very much unsettle. Some thought the heavy selling reflected the possibility of a less buillish report from the National Ginners' Association between now and the end of the week than had been talked of carlier, but no figures were recreated and the weak than had been talked of carlier, but no figures were recreated and the provisions were firm.

The leading futures ranged as follows:

Receipts at the ports to-day were 55,381 blues against 59,485 last week and 67,281 last below the first points and the ports to-day were 55,381 bales against 59,485 last week and 67,281 last

Efforts at Reconciliation.

NEW YORK, November 4.—Mrs. Henry Clews who says a costume dinner at the Elkridge Hunt Club in Baitimore several years ago. Mrs. Clews went as a bathing girl, and when some one suggested that she was afraid to go near the water, she denied it. Then a tub full of water was brought in, and in the excitement that followed Mrs. Clews was ducked.

At Bar Harbor, on a "dare," Mrs.

Mrs. Clews, it is related, appealed to her young painter-sculptor husband because of the delicate pailor of her skin, her dark hair and eyes. One admirer had called her "Galatea Come to Life." She was his inspiration, his principal model. His first portrait of her still ranks as one of his best works.

But in Paris the gambols of art students did not appeal to her, and she favored the dictates of the "Paubourg" rather than the eccentricities of the Quatier Latin.

Providence, was held here to-day for the purpose of considering higher prices for cotton yarms because of the advance in the raw material.

The cotton spinners of the South are rereported to be in sympathy with the North Carolina's delegation's appeal to the commission men for a higher price for yarms. The spinners say they can make no profit at the present prices.

The conference is secret. While no higher price is likely to be agreed upon immediately, according to some of those in attendance, the meeting may have the effect of establishing a higher quotation for yarms in the near future.
